Values, Evidence, and Decision-Making

Tuesday, February 20, 2018, 12:30-1:45 pm

Educational Sciences Room 253, 1025 W. Johnson St.

SPEAKERS

Susanna Loeb Barnett Family Professor of Education, Stanford University

Harry Brighouse Dickson Bascom Professor of the Humanities and Professor of Philosophy, University of Wisconsin-Madison

We spend a lot of time arguing about how schools might be improved. But we rarely take a step back to ask what we as a society should be looking for from education—what exactly should those who make decisions be trying to achieve?

Susanna Loeb and Harry Brighouse will talk about their new book, written with Adam Swift and Helen Ladd, Educational Goods, which offers a way of combining rigorous thinking about values and careful consideration of evidence when making decisions about, and within, schools.
