

The Future of Undergraduate Education

Thursday, May 31, 2018
11:30 a.m.-1:10 p.m.
Skyview Room, The Fluno Center

How to improve our teaching? The first recommendation of The Future of Undergraduate Education, a report from the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, is that we work to improve undergraduate instruction. But how? Join the Center for Ethics and Education, the College of Letters & Sciences, and the American Academy for the Arts and Sciences for lunch on May 31st, to discuss strategies for improving instruction. Panels will feature faculty from the UW-Madison and the UW system, and students from UW-Madison, offering practical ideas for improving instruction.

PRESENTERS

Michael McPherson
(President Emeritus, Spencer Foundation)

Karl Scholz
(Dean, College of Letters and Sciences)

FACULTY PANEL

Tim Dale (Political Science, UW-La Crosse)
Fay Akindes (UW System)
Emily Fletcher (Philosophy, UW-Madison)
Lynn Glueck (Instructional Coach, MMSD)

THE CENTER FOR ETHICS & EDUCATION

